What is SMART?

CIIFAD's Student Multidisciplinary Applied Research Team (SMART) Program brings together teams of students and faculty from diverse disciplines and pairs them with firms, organizations, or community groups located in developing countries.

The teams work on well-defined assignments that challenge students to apply the knowledge and skills learned in the classroom in real world settings.

Teams work on location with the company or partner group for at least two weeks and return to campus for the spring semester course AEM 4421 Research and Strategy in Emerging Markets (3 credits).
